PROFILE

From a Music and Humanitarian Service background, I am shifting into the Technology field to finally achieve my passion and love for Web Development. I love creating and bringing imaginations to life through visual representation, creating something unique that people can feel, interact with, and work with. My music background has provided me with keen attention to detail, self-discipline, collaborating with others and the ability to persevere and refine until excellence is achieved. I am ready to take on the challenge and be a contributing member of the team.
